Tribal Wives, BBC Knowledge, 7.30pm

RECOVERING alcoholic Lana Inglis travels to Ethiopia to join the Afar tribe for a month. The experience is one the flight attendant hopes will be the final step to leaving her past behind and to happiness with her pilot boyfriend. Meeting the tribe and her instant acceptance brings her to tears, as she realises how hard tribal life is.

Documentary

A Well Founded Fear, SBS, 8.30pm

THIS film follows Phil Glendenning, the head of a small social justice agency whose concerns about life for rejected asylum seekers led him on a global quest for answers. After locating more than 250 individuals, Glendenning was appalled by their stories. Among the claims are allegations the government used falsified travel documents to deport returnees.

Documentary

Hamish and Andy Re-Gifted, Channel 10, 7.30pm

AS THE ratings year winds down, it's common to see one-off specials recapping the year's events. This one celebrates Hamish and Andy's appearances on Rove, one hosted by the duo from the comfort of Andy's mother's back yard. With the pair dominating drive-time radio ratings, could it be that Ten is using the special to see if viewers are ready for Hamish and Andy to have their own show again?
